Your bet will still be valid.

Understanding the rules

Before we dive into what happens to your bets, it's essential to understand the rules of sports betting. Most sportsbooks have specific rules for postponed games, which we'll outline below:

- Game defined as completed: A game is considered complete once it is official and the outcome is determined. If a game is postponed and later resumed, it is still considered the same game. However, if a game is cancelled, it is treated as an abandoned game.
- Abandoned games: If a game is interrupted and not resumed within 24 hours, it is considered abandoned, and all bets are voided.
- Interrupted games: If a game is interrupted and resumed within 24 hours, all bets will still be valid.

Now that you know the rules...

... let's focus on the different scenarios and what happens to your bets:

1. Scenario 1: Game is rescheduled. In this scenario, your bet will be refunded. You can choose to place a new bet on the rescheduled game, but it's essential to note that the odds might have changed. Keep an eye on the new odds and make an informed decision on your next move.
2. Scenario 2: Game is canceled. Just like in scenario 1, your bet will be refunded. There's no need to place a new bet, unless you want to, of course.
3. Scenario 3: Game is interrupted and not resumed within 24 hours. In this scenario, your bet will be voided. Don't panic, though! You'll get your money back. Although your bet didn't pay out, it doesn't affect the outcome of the game. The game may still be ongoing, just at a later time than initially planned.

4. Scenario 4: Game is interrupted and resumed within 24 hours. In this scenario, your bet will still be valid. Cheers to that! Since the game has resumed, it means the outcome can still be determined, and your bet might pay out. Keep in mind that, even if the game restarts within 24 hours, you might need to place a new bet, as odds might have changed.
